Proposal could key city's future

By TOM KISKEN

PAHOKEE—The 50-year lease and proposed development of the Pahokee lakfront is the city's one key to a bigger, brighter tomorrow, say local developers involved in the project.

Ray Hutton II, of Hutton Properties which owns about a 5 percent interest in the Pahokee Marina Development Corporation, urged area residents to take a look at the facts which, he said, show that PMDC's is one of Pahokee's few hopes for the future.

"I feel like it's the future of Pahokee, it's the only thing that will bring life back to Pahokee," Hutton said.

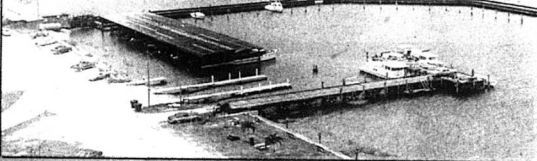

Councilman Walt Rashley agreed, saying

PMDC could be the spark to bring in the growth which Pahokee desperately needs.

"I support it 100 percent," he said. "We need a turning point and, as a businessman, I really think this could be it."

Both Rashley and Hutton stressed that growing public dissent has hurt the project and could eventually kill PMDC's interest in Pahokee all together. "Quite frankly, I'm surprised they're still interested," Hutton said.

Public opposition, Rashley added, has played a big part in stalling PMDC over the past two years. "If people just went up to City Hall and read the contract, I'd think all they'd

Leaders oppose marina lease

PAHOKEE—The question facing Pahokee is not whether the lakfront needs to be developed, but whether the city's 50-year agreement with a private corporation is the right vehicle through which to work, maintain three city council members.

The answer is no, assert Ronnie Graydon, Curtis Miners and W.E. McKinstry.

Miners called the lease with Pahokee Marina Development Corporation "a one-sided deal." He said he is trying to find out what course of action the council can take toward revising the agreement.

Graydon agreed. "It (the lakfront) is the only asset we've got, I just can't see us giving it away."

McKinstry said he felt a majority of Pahokee's residents also had serious reservations about the proposed development. "The majority I talk to can't see what good it will do," he said.

Mike Stauder, attorney representing the city council, said that while the city's approved contract was legally binding, it could be broken, if PMDC fails to meet any of several contingencies written into the contract.

"If there is a valid reason as set forth in contract, they could do it (void the agreement), but they can't just arbitrarily change their minds," Stauder said.

As one of the major contingencies in the contract, PMDC must get proper permits and authorization from all relevant state agencies. Stauder noted that it was likely the city's contract would have to be renegotiated in order to meet state standards.

Stauder said any part of the contract could be renegotiated with the mutual agreement of both parties. Miners, McKinstry and Graydon all said they would support a workshop meeting between the council and PMDC where differences and proposed changes could be discussed.

Ever since council members Walt Rashley, Jon Mock, since defeated by Miners in a reelection bid, and Ada Conley voted for PMDC's proposed lease of the waterfront on May 26, 1983, the issue has become a hotbed of controversy.

Both McKinstry and Graydon voted against PMDC's proposal.

Youth rally set in victim's memory

BELLE GLADE—Youth will discuss drug abuse at a rally, prompted by the murder of Tina Kirchman, scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Thursday, June 7 at the Belle Glade Civic Center.

Two rehabilitated drug users, Webster Edwards, of Clewiston, and Rev. J.P. Feld, Belle Glade, will tell youth how they personally overcame drug crises.

The Rev. Tim Harris, director of the teen center, "Rock House," in Clewiston, will also speak.

Kirchman was stabbed to death at her home May 19 during an apparent cocaine transaction.

Man charged in murder

BELLE GLADE—Police charged a 68-year old local man with second degree murder after the early morning shooting of another man, Tuesday, June 6, on the 500 block of S.W. Ave. B Place.

Durant Wilson, of Belle Glade, was arrested less than an hour after Turner Robinson, 26, of Belle Glade, was shot in the upper chest. Robinson was pronounced dead at about 3:30 a.m., at Glades General Hospital.

Belle Glade Police Detective John Carney said police were alerted to the shooting at about 2:25 a.m. Tuesday. Wilson and Robinson were arguing when Wilson pulled a pocket knife and stabbed Robinson once, Carney said. There has been no evidence to indicate any premeditation, he added.

Witnesses led police to suspect Wilson, who was found a short distance from the crime scene, Carney said.

Police investigation into the matter continues as police are trying to determine the cause of the altercation.

Detective Mike Johnson is the investigating officer.

South Bay seeks FCC help with cable TV woes

SOUTH BAY—The South Bay City Commission will ask the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) for help in resolving its cable television concerns.

Commissioners voted unanimously to ask the FCC in a letter, to investigate the quality of cable service South Bay receives from Sunbelt Cable Ltd. In approving the motion, several commissioners noted they are still getting numerous complaints about the quality of Sunbelt's service.

Commissioners also authorized City Manager Lonax Harrelle to see if any other cable companies are interested in expanding in South Bay.

Mayor Vernita Cox introduced the issue at Tuesday's meeting, saying the service was not improving despite numerous meetings with Sunbelt representatives. Something has to be done to rectify the situation, she said. "We're paying adequate money, I feel we should get adequate services."

Commissioner Don Tanner suggested the commission drop its franchise with Sunbelt. While this action would not prevent Sunbelt from servicing South Bay, at least it would free the city from any link with the company, he said.

Currently, the city is paid a annual franchise fee by South Bay.

Jim Shropshire suggested commissioners try another route before dropping the franchise fee. "Dropping the fee would be like cutting off your nose to spite your face," he said.

Perhaps the FCC would be able to pressure Sunbelt into improving its service, Shropshire suggested.

Commissioner Clarence Anthony urged the city to look for another cable company, in case Sunbelt does not shape up.

Tanner said that he would ask the commission to drop its Sunbelt franchise, unless the cable service improves.

In other commission business:

Cox also advised the commission that action may be needed to try and get an AT&T telephone repair service center in the Glades. Currently, the closest repair centers are in West Palm Beach, she said.

Noting that about 25,000 people live in the Glades and need working telephones, Cox said, "AT&T people owe the Glades a repair service."

The commission agreed to ask the support of Belle Glade and Pahokee city governments in working toward getting a repair service in the Glades.

The commission asked the police department to investigate the condition of the vacant lot located at the corner of US 27 and SR 80.

Cox noted several old cars were being parked in the lot and should be removed. The lot should also be weeded and cleaned by the owner, she said.

Cox also informed the commission that a doctor, out of West Palm Beach, is interested in starting a South Bay practice. Medical service is one of the community's biggest needs, she said, asking the city and residents to do all they can to help the doctor get situated. Cox said she would bring the doctor to the next commission meeting, June 18.

Commissioners also approved Phase Six of the contract with Palm Beach County Community Development, which includes the paving and draining of sidewalks on N.W. Eighth Ave., ranging from Palm Beach Road to N.W. First St.

Pahokee Lions roar through installation night

By TOM KISKEN

PAHOKEE—The Pahokee Lions gave every indication at their annual installation night, Thursday, May 31, that they've just begun to roar.

District Governor Jim Crawford, installation officer at the banquet held in the Lake Club, challenged each of the new Lion representatives to serve the community to their utmost ability. "Answering the call to serve, that's what this club is all about," Crawford said.

Newly installed President John Pender echoed Crawford's sentiments. "I urge each of you to fulfill our motto—'We serve,'" he said.

Along with Pender, new officers for the Pahokee club include: Mike Dobrow, first vice president; Gary "Bucky" Sanders, second vice president; Dale Morris, third vice president; Richard Mount, secretary-treasurer; Hugo Rainier, tail twister; and Ray Stedham, Lion tamer.

Each vice president stepped up one notch from last year's position with Mount, outgoing president, turning over the gavel to Pender. Mount thanked all of the Lions for making the past year a successful one.

Several at the banquet commended the Lions for their community work, but perhaps the biggest, and certainly most heartfelt, thankyou came from Missy Needs, a waitress at the Lake Club.

Needs told the Lions that her 81-year-old uncle, totally blind following a bought with a cornea transplant in Miami, thanks to the financial support of the Fort Pierce Lions. Now, the man can see, his vision restored 60 percent.

OUTSTANDING LION OF THE YEAR
Bucky Sanders accepted his award from his father Gary, at the Lion's installation dinner, held at the Lake Club.

"I'd like to say thank you," Needs said. "I've never had a chance to thank anyone. Thank you from my heart."

Also at the meeting two new Lion prospects, Curtis Miners and Richard Keen, were inducted into the organization.

The man who sponsored both inductees, Duncan Padgett, was given a pin honoring the number of Lions he had brought into the club during the last year. Crawford told the Lions that Padgett, over his long tenure with the organization, had sponsored over 100 new members, enough Lions to begin 5 clubs.

Mount was also given a pin for bringing in new members.

Bill Swartz, outgoing district governor, also spoke at the banquet, encouraging the Lion's to keep up their good work.

NEW LIONS Curtis Miners, left, and Richard Keen were inducted into the Pahokee Lions Club during the installation banquet, held Friday, June 1. Duncan Padgett, middle, sponsored both candidates.

Saunders named Pahokee Lion of the Year

PAHOKEE—Gary C. "Bucky" Sanders was named Outstanding Lion of the Year, at the Pahokee Lions' installation night, Thursday, May 31.

Bucky's father, Gary Sr., presented his son with the Ralph Stanley award, annually given to the Lion who has best exemplified the club's motto—"We serve."

Bucky, 135 Annona Ave., said, "I really appreciate this. I just hope I can be a better Lion for the club next year."

J.S. Atkins, in announcing the winner of the award, said Sanders had made the most of every opportunity to help the Lions and the community.

"He has shown these new members and some of the old members what can be done, if you just get out and work," Atkins noted.

Sanders' key role in organizing the Lion's turkey shoot earlier this year, adding the total list of Sanders' accomplishments was too long to recite.

Sanders, newly inducted second vice president, has been a Lion for about three years. Noting the Lions were the first club he had ever joined, Sanders said he became interested in the organization after visiting a couple of the club's eyesight facilities. Saying he derived a great deal of satisfaction from his work with the Lions, Sanders urged other community residents to participate in the service club.

Belle Glade Civitans honor retiring educators

Dorothy Oliver retires after 30 year career

BELLE GLADE —After teaching for 30 years in the Glades, Dorothy G. Oliver is retiring from her position as a teacher at Gove Elementary.

"I've been starting teaching the grand-children," of her first students) Oliver said.

"It's time to retire."

Oliver said teaching was exciting for her. "I found the key to today's problem is how to control discipline. If discipline is controlled, then learning will take place," she said.

She started her teaching career at Okeechobee Elementary School in the Okeechobee project. She said that was a good school.

She said her aim when she started teaching was 30 years and she had reached her goal. She plans to work in the community after her retirement and fish and travel.

Oliver is active in the community. She is the Worthy Matron of the Sisters of the Sons of the Eastern Star, President of the Heroines of Jerico, Daylight Court 292 and President of the Cupidettes Club, Inc.

She is a member of the Daughters of Isis, Masud Court 71 and Deputy of the Oasis; member of the Bethune Cookman College Alumni Association and was just elected recordkeeper for the 18th BELLE GLADE—Four retiring school employees from the Glades were honored by the Belle Glade Civitan Club, Thursday, May 31.

Margaret West, Gloria Dulany Smith, Roy Carter and John Rollyn Nutt were all awarded plaques and recognized for their years of service. All four will retire at the end of the current school year.

Belle Glade Elementary School Principal Harry Davis, who has worked with all four retirees, said the school system will sorely miss the instructors.

"We hate to see them all go. They are of the caliber that's hard to replace," Davis said.

West has taught first grade at Belle Glade Elementary School for about 45 years. A graduate of Pahokee High School, West came to Belle Glade for good in 1939, shortly after earning a degree from Bridgewater College in Virginia.

One of the joys of her career, West said, is teaching next door to Smith, a first grade teacher at the school for 22 years.

Smith, also a Pahokee High School graduate, began her teaching career in the late 1940's as a substitute teacher. In 1957 she became the remedial reading teacher at Belle Glade Elementary and five years later found a permanent home with the first grade class.

Of Smith's four children, three chose to follow in their mother's footsteps and become teachers.

Carter, 54, a resident of Belle Glade, currently principal of Northmore Elementary School, near West Palm Beach, has worked in and out of the Glades for the past 20 years. He has served as director of West Tech Elementary School and as principal of South Bay Elementary, Belle Glade Junior High and Glades Central High School.

Carter earned bachelor's and master's degrees from Florida State University. A band director for several years, Carter began working in Palm Beach County in 1965. Nutt, 59, has served as the human relations counselor in the West Area School Board Office for the past 27 years, and has worked 47 years in education. A graduate of Mississippi State University, Nutt worked in Alabama schools before moving to Florida.

Passing quietly

Millard Faircloth was a kindly old gentleman who died recently doing what he most enjoyed: fishing.

You might almost say that Millard was in heaven before he died. He was baiting a hook when he slumped forward. His passing was a quiet one.

I had the privilege of interviewing Mr. Faircloth — or "Pop" as some called him — several years ago on the occasion of his 90th birthday.

When the time came to take his photo, however, I couldn't get him to smile. So I had a beautiful and shapely woman, who we'll call B. C., stand next to him as I snapped away. He hadn't lost his appreciation for southern belles. B. C. brought a smile to his face and a twinkle to his eyes.

I found his sense of humor intact along with his other senses. I use to enjoy seeing this 90-year-old gent drive up to get his paper each Wednesday. Old age didn't keep him from fishing, driving, or any of the other things he wanted to do. Until recently, he would embark on long drives to the Carolinas.

Might we all live and die as gently as Millard Faircloth. If you never knew him, you missed something.

Recently we received a portfolio of political cartoons from a young gentleman in Texas, seeking employment with our newspaper.

I was highly impressed with his work, but I wrote back that we already have two contributing cartoonists who live right here in the Glades.

Like everything else about this newspaper, the cartoons are home-produced too.

The work that you regularly see in this newspaper comes from the Mark Cantrell of Canal Point and Bob Belton of Clewiston.

Each has an individual approach to his work and a talent for striking home with an insightful and artistic stroke of the pen.

Good cartoonists are hard to find and it is even more unusual to find two fine ones such as Bob and Mark on anything other than a much larger newspaper.

We feel fortunate to have them aboard and look forward to seeing their work each week.

Pentecost Sunday

This Sunday is called Pentecost. Originally it was a Jewish holiday, 3,000 people trusted known as the Feast of Christ as his savior.

Weeks or First-Fruits We don't need because it was the celebration of the corn because when the Holy Spirit came over 1,900 to ripen in Palestine. Today this holiday is called Shabbath by Jews, and for central to the Church has called it White Sunday.

Enough for that bit of boring background; let's get to the meaning of Pentecost Sunday. Although there are various symbolic meanings attached to this day of celebration, what is most important to us is described in the second chapter of Acts. Here we find that a group of Christians (according to chapter one they number 120) gathered for prayer. Suddenly, they are all filled with the Holy Spirit.

Now at this point you can get all excited, (or disgusted, depending on your theological background) about the visible and audible signs of fire, wind and tongues. But, it seems to me, what is really important in this story is the fact that people of many different nationalities heard of the Christians "speaking of the mighty deeds of God" in their own individual languages. Pahokee marina workshop needed

We strongly support the idea of the Pahokee City Council holding a workshop with representatives of the Pahokee Marina Development Corporation.

Quite obviously, the public and the council itself is not satisfied with PMDC's 50-year lease of the lakefront. A workshop meeting would give all parties a chance to air their opinions and suggest changes.

Editorial

Only if the community and PMDC work together, will any type of development project ever become truly successful on the lakefront. Therefore, we urge both sides to renegotiate and work toward a mutually satisfactory agreement. Both council members and PMDC representatives should be ready to listen to other viewpoints with an open mind, willing to compromise if necessary.

The one point which both sides agree upon is that the lakefront needs to be developed. However, unless the parties can reach further agreement, we fear this goal will remain just a dream.

Lockmiller remember's early days

Editor's note: As part of the new history series in the Herald Observer, the following is the first segment in the story of Carl Lockmiller's early experiences in the Glades. Lockmiller first lived in Kansas, Oregon, Washington and Texas before moving to Florida in 1914, where this series begins.

As Told by CARL LOCKMILLER to RUTH S. IRVIN

We stayed at Stockyard Station until Dad left for Florida in 1914. Mother then moved to an apartment at Marina, which was half way between Ft. Worth and Stockyard Station. She kept her job at Swift's. She would give both Frank and me 25 cents on Saturday and we would go into Ft. Worth on the trolley or a jitney on the Model T bus line. The fare for each was 5 cents so we each spent 10 cents to go and come. We each bought a 5-cent bag of candy and went to two movies with our other 10 cents. We saw two movies about cowboys and Indians. The best theatre was the Majestic which cost 25 cents — we did not get to go there. Ft. Worth had very few cars in those days. The streets were filled with buggies and wagons. Elaborate horse drawn carriages met the trains. The big depot, the Express Co., and Wells Fargo were close together. The Trinity building was eleven stories high.

Dad sent for me and Frank to come to Florida before the end of 1914. Mother and Zelma stayed in Ft. Worth until 1915. Mother put Frank and me on the train in Ft. Worth and when we got to New Orleans we had to change trains. There were a great many people at the depot. A man came to help us and we took a horse drawn taxi to another depot where he put us on a train bound for Florida.

We saw tugboats and barges and in Mississippi and Alabama razor back hogs would come up to the train. Jacksonville was the point where we had to change trains in Florida. A man took us up to a rooming house where we paid 50 cents to spend the night. The rooms were not walled up all the way and we were scared. We went back to the depot the next morning. It was a big, low building and it had the biggest clock I had ever seen. I was fascinated to watch the hands move. We caught the train to Ft. Lauderdale and we noticed pine trees that stretched along the way all leaned westward. Dad met us in Ft. Lauderdale. He had come down from where Bean City is located today on a run boat that hauled fish from Lake Okechobee. It had a big fish box with ice and a little cabin at the back where the engine was. Dad had a bushy beard and he got shaved off while we were in town. We went up the North New River Canal and it took us twenty-four hours to run to the lake because we were bucking the current and the engine was small.

Dad had discovered, when he came to Florida before us, that the land he and Uncle Marion had bought was half way between Miami and Lake Harbor and that it should have been sold by the barrel. They never could find it.

Dad and Uncle Marion were squatting on land near the lake in the Bean City area, west of South Bay, and had their farming operations underway. Uncle Marion, before Dad arrived, had poled a boat, larger than a run boat, the twenty-five miles to Moore Haven and bought lumber to build a one-room house. He waded back along the shallow rim of the lake and pulled the boat loaded with lumber. He put down a floor and built a room that was 14-feet by 14-feet. He sided it up half way and then put a tent over it. This was their house. The mosquitoes descended in vast hordes at night and a big mosquito net hung from above and covered to beds to protect us while we were asleep.

Dad built a one-room house after we came. It was about one-fourth mile back from the lake and we moved into it.

All of us worked from day light to dark.

Our one-room house had a wood floor, slatted sides, and a slatted roof, and it was covered with tar paper. This was the typical house of Lake Okechobee's South Shore settlers. Father grew green beans, linas, potatoes, onions, bell peppers and egg plant. After the Miami Canal from Lake Harbor was built Dad grew cabbage one year and he once took a boatload of it to Miami. Our little power launch pulled our loaded boat right into downtown Miami — this was about 1915.

The vegetables we grew were ordinarily picked up by the mail boat from Rittia Island and taken to Ft. Lauderdale. We would pack our vegetables in hampers, load them on our small boat, and take them off shore in the early morning to be picked up by Captain Ed Forbes in the Mayflower. Sometimes, it he was heavily loaded, he would want to refuse them. My dad would firmly say, "You have to take them, I'm going to parcel post them."

Forbes had a reason for not wanting to take the vegetables sometimes, if his boat load was heavy. There was a shallow place in the canal near the Broward County line and a heavy load made it difficult to get the boat past this place. He and Captain Felix Forbes had a boat sink there in 1915. It was the "Dixie" and it carried the mail. It hit a discarded iron object and began to fill up. Captain Felix Forbes dived in the gas and oil filled water in the cabin to rescue the mail and his nose and ears were horribly burned. Even after an operation his right ear was mutilated.

PMDC "the right to develop, improve and operate the breakwater and marina..." The council's final May approval came two months of debate, including a preliminary approval of the agreement and then a retraction of this approval.

The 10-year lease, including a five-year initial term and three 15-year renewal options, poses one of the major barriers between developers and the three council members.

Graydon, McKinstry and Miners said that under no circumstances could they support such a long term commitment.

The council, Miners said, is overstepping its bounds in approving a 50-year lease. "You're talking about a 50-year lease and that not only affects our young'uns, but our grand young'uns too," he said.

Noting developers maintain the long term lease is a necessity, Graydon said he'd rather try to get someone else to develop the lakefront, or forget the idea all together.

Another fault with the contract, according to the three council members, is the insufficient payback to the city.

McKinstry said the contract guarantees the city only $300 a month, adding that the city currently gets more money from the marina than that.

While under the agreement the city is promised a percentage of gross receipts after the first two years of operation, McKinstry argued these figures will not be nearly as large as PMDC developers claim.

"I don't see where they'll draw people with it," he said. "We still aren't going to get all that many fishermen with this thing," he said.

Graydon again agreed, saying the main problem with Pahokee's lakefront was the lack of unprotected waters. The lake is just too rough to attract that many anglers, he said.

The real gold mine on the lakefront is the state campground, Graydon said. Noting that PMDC is having problems getting the state okay to develop the campground, Graydon suggested the city take on the project, if possible.

Miners said he'd favor the city taking over the entire lakefront project. Asked if the city has sufficient funds for a lakefront project, Miners said, "We can do what the lease currently makes them (PMDC) do."

The contract, he added, does not specify any of PMDC's plans for the lakefront. "They say they intend to do this and that. That means they might do it," he said.

The lack of specifics was also pinpointed by Graydon and McKinstry. All three council members said they would be interested in meeting with PMDC representatives and getting the corporation's specific plans down in writing.

Miners, in particular, said he would welcome the opportunity to find out more about PMDC and its plans for the lake. While he has been trying to investigate the matter, Miners said he has had trouble finding helpful information.

area evaluations, when he supported strongly. Lovell said he accelerated his search for a job.

The subject area evaluations is one of the board's major accomplishments of the last four years, Lovell previously worked as a said. It requires students in grades 9-12 to take semester evaluations in English and math.

Lovell said the subject area evaluations will give parents and schools a more accurate idea of how well students are doing in various subjects.

Elected to the school board in 1980, Lovell previously worked as a vocational education teacher at Glades Central Community High School.

he opposed to is the financial end," he said. Despite the public opposition, Hutton said, he would keep pushing PMDC toward the Pahokee development as long as possible.

"Once I've exhausted everything within my resource is the day I'll lay it down," he said. "And the day I lay it down is the day I'll go to one of the other cities that's waiting for this project with open arms."

Currently, PMDC is slated to begin its lease Jan. 10, 1986, upon the completion of William Joiner's marina lease with the city. However, Hutton said PMDC is hoping the city is able to resolve Joiner's contract before it expires.

Joiner said he fully intends to wait out the duration of his lease. However, Stauder said the city may be able to end the lease, providing Joiner is given sufficient notice.

As far as he can ascertain, Hutton said, the number one fear about PMDC's plans has been that it will deny access to the lake. This allegation, he said, is blatantly untrue.

According to its contract, PMDC is required to keep the lake open to the public. Not only will the facility remain open, Hutton added, but more access points will probably be opened.

Both Hutton and Rashley agreed that the most viable argument against PMDC's lease was the amount of rent to be paid to the city.

During the first two development years of PMDC's plan, the contract guarantees the city only $300 a month. After that, the city will receive a percentage of gross receipts, which would increase as PMDC's revenues went up.

The problem is, Hutton said, that people are only expecting PMDC to make about $500,000, which would bring the city about $10,000 annually. "We won't stay afloat very long if we only generate $500,000 a year," he said.

In fact, Hutton predicted that eventually PMDC's gross receipts would reach $2 million dollars, a rate which would bring the city about $65,000.

Considering the added income, the improvements of the lakefront and all the indirect benefits, the city is the one interest which really stands to gain in the lakefront development, Hutton said.

While council members have cited PMDC's long term lease, a five-year initial term with three 15-year renewal options, as a prime fault of the agreement, Hutton said the 50-year agreement is a business necessity.

Without the long term agreement, PMDC would not be able to obtain sufficient funding for the project, he said, adding that funding for phase one could total $2.3 million, escalating to as much as $25 million over ten years.

Phase one, Hutton said, includes:

- Complete restoration of the electricity and water at the marina.

- Additional boat docks.
- Renovation of the dockmaster store.
- Restaurant, if approved by state agencies.

Much of what PMDC can do will be determined by various state agencies, Hutton said. "We want to do as much as we can that will be allowed."

One of the projects which PMDC hopes to take on is the development of the state park, Hutton said. The observation tower is also targeted for renovation work later on in PMDC's development plan.

All the work, Hutton said, is aimed at improving the lakefront both for local residents and out-of-town tourists. PMDC, he added, will have to attract big boats and out of town people in order to be successful.

The city, through the development, has a golden opportunity to take advantage of its unique lakefront location, Hutton said.

Rashley said the city has sat on its proverbial golden egg for too long. "We're sitting here on the lake with direct access and we're just wasting it," he said.

Currently, Hutton said, PMDC is in the process of obtaining the various state permits they must have to assume control of the lakefront.

PMDC is composed of several businessmen from the Fort Lauderdale area, Hutton said. Among corporation members are Steve Adels-tein, president, Steve Korman and Hans Ush.

Mc Tillis owns about a five percent share in the corporation.

AFDSI, as the organization is known, is international in scope with a membership of more than 2,500 leading funeral firms. Only outstanding funeral homes throughout the world are invited to membership.

500 Glades Gators greet Florida's Charlie Pell

By TOM KISKEN

BELLE GLADE—Again and again the crowd of over 500 enthusiastic University Florida sports fans at the Belle Glade Elks Club, Wednesday, May 31, were told they constituted one of the most impressive Gator Gatherings in recent history.

The Big Lake Gators Club's first annual meeting, held Wednesday, May 31, at the Belle Glade Elks Club, brought out University of Florida fans from every corner of the Glades.

Dalton Yancey, one of the club's organizers, summed up the evening succinctly.

"Everybody's here," he said. Wayne McDonald, director of alumni affairs at UF, told the crowd, "You deserve a round of applause from us at the University of Florida for what you've done here tonight." McDonald and other UF representatives said the crowd represented the biggest first time meeting by any Gator Club.

Several UF representatives, including Charley Pell, football coach, and Norm Sloan, basketball coach, spoke at the banquet.

Pell said the support shown by Belle Glade is indicative of the excitement Gator Clubs are generating throughout the state.

"The whole objective is just be with people and have a good time," Pell said.

Pell told the Glades fans that the Gator football team was coming off a very special type of season. Last year's squad finished the year ranked sixth in the nation with a 9-2 record and a victory in the Gator Bowl over the University of Iowa.

The '83 Gators, which made its fourth consecutive bowl experience, became the first Florida team, along with the University of Miami, to break into the nation's top ten rankings.

With seven starters graduating, including quarterback Wayne Peace and linebacker Wilbur Marshall, next year's Gator squad faces an uphill fight, Pell said.

"We've got a sure enough battle on our hands," he said.

The team will be talented, but young, Pell said, adding the players would probably play better as the year progressed.

Offensively, the team is searching for a quarterback. Pell said several candidates have shown talent, but none has gone out and grabbed the starting job.

Defensively, the squad's success could well depend upon the play of the defensive line, Pell said. The line will be one of the most experienced units on the club and will be counted on heavily.

Pell said the team is hoping for big things from their contingency of Glades natives. Among those expected to contribute are Ray McDonald, wide receiver; Tommy Duhart, defensive tackle; Thomas Lockett, linebacker; Basil Benjamin, defensive back; and Rhondy Weston, newly recruited defensive lineman.

Sloan also predicted a good year for the Gator hoopsters. The team will miss a couple of seniors, but is counting on a mixture of returning players and new recruits to pick up the slack.

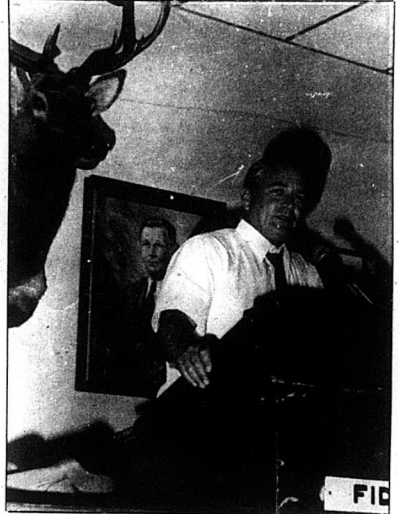

Last year's basketball team compiled a 16-11 record and competed in the National Invitational Tournament (NIT).

Phil Pharr, of the Gator Boosters, urged Glades residents to show their support of the university's athletic program by joining the booster club. Last year the 7,000 Gator boosters generated $4 million, Pharr said.

David Steele, network coordinator for UF, also spoke at the banquet.

UF COACH Charley Pell meets a Glades Gator, at the first annual meeting of the Big Lake Gators Club, Wednesday, May 30

CHARLEY PELL told members of the Big Lake Gators Club, Wednesday, that the University of Florida's grid squad had it work cut out for themselves next year.

City tournament slated

BELLE GLADE—The City of Belle Glade is sponsoring an Early Firecracker softball tournament at Airport Park, Friday through Sunday, June 22-24. Drug possession charged

BELLE GLADE—A Belle Glade man was charged with several counts of possession of both lottery paraphernalia and drugs, Thursday, May 31. Willie Anthony Williams, 28, of 696 S.W. Fourth St., Belle Glade, was charged with possession of lottery paraphernalia, narcotics paraphernalia and carrying a gun under 20 grams, possession of cocaine, intent to sell cocaine and resisting arrest without violence. According to Belle Glade police reports, Patrolman J. Smith apprehended Williams after witnessing him holding lottery paraphernalia inside an apartment at 517 S.W. Ave. B Place. A search of the premises revealed ed lottery paraphernalia, marijuana and cocaine. Williams was placed under a $3,000 bond.

In another drug arrest, Pablo Cannet, 27,

417 W. Ave. A., Belle Glade, was charged with possession of marijuana under 20 grams, possession of narcotics paraphernalia and carrying a gun under 20 grams, concealed weapon.

Johnson reported that he apprehended Cannet at about 2:22 a.m., Saturday, June 2.

Suspecting a weapon, Johnson said he searched the man and found a cocaine smoking device. Further search revealed the marijuana and a butcher's knife.

Patrolman Samuel Briefman assisted in the case.

Raider alumnus doing well

BELLE GLADE—Glades Central alumnus Sonny Williams is keeping his jumps and hopes high.

The high jumper just finished an impressive freshman year at South Carolina State. Williams, the son of James Williams, of Belle Glade, was named to the all-conference team and also won SC State track team's rookie of the year honors. He set school records in the high jump both indoors and outdoors with jumps of 6-foot-10 and 7-foot-2.

Williams, back in Belle Glade for the summer, said he hopes to do even better in the future. He said his goal for next year is to be named to the All American team, and after that he has eyes on the 1988 Olympics.

His goals, Williams said, are attainable, if he really commits himself. "I just need a little more concentration, to work a little harder."

Considering that a jump of 7-5½ won this year's Nationals, Williams is not that far off from his goals. In practice this year, Williams cleared 7-4.

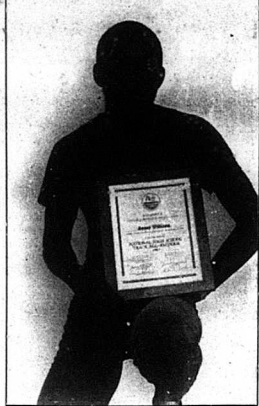

As a Glades Central senior, Williams was ranked eighth among the nation's prep high jumpers and was named to an All-American squad. The year included a record 7-foot jump at the state meet.

Williams said his freshman year at SC State, more than anything, was a learning experience. "I learned so much just by watching other jumpers," he said.

Away from the track, Williams learned quite a bit also as he earned a 2.3 grade point average, an improvement over his Glades Central days.

"Books come first," he said. "All the mistakes I made between ninth and 12th grade I don't plan on making again."

Next year, Williams will be joined by another Glades Central grad, Eric Smith who accepted a football scholarship to SC State.

SONNY WILLIAMS

Williams also had some advice for other athletes hoping for a crack at college: "Just prepare for it and you'll make it."
